

INSTANT INSIGHTS

December 11, 2024

Disinflation In The Right Places?

Headline and core consumer prices rose 0.3% in November, taking CPI from 2.6% to 2.7% and keeping core CPI at 3.3% year-over-year (YoY). Both were in line with market expectations. Although at first glance this may look like another hiccup on the path to the Federal Reserve's (the "Fed's") 2% target, we expect the Fed to be encouraged by progress across "sticky" core services components. As such, a rate cut next week remains a sensible base case, in our view.

CORE SERVICES PRICES CONTINUE TO EASE

Core goods prices rebounded somewhat, led by a pickup in used cars, new vehicles, and household furnishings and supplies. Elsewhere, energy prices rose 0.2% in November, largely due to a 0.6% increase in gasoline prices.

FIGURE 1: CORE GOODS PRICES DISPLAY A MODEST REBOUND ¹

Charts are provided for illustrative purposes only.

However, the Fed watches the "stickier" core services inflation components more closely, and they showed progress in most areas. For example, rental components rose by 0.2% – the slowest monthly increase since 2021 – and shelter slowed from 4.9% to 4.7% YoY, its slowest since 2022. Excluding shelter, CPI was only 1.6% over the past 12 months.

The "supercore" services components (which exclude shelter) were also encouraging. Transportation services were flat in November, helped by easing inflation in airline fares, and medical care services inflation fell slightly (Figure 2).

¹ Macrobond, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Bloomberg, Insight, December 2024

FIGURE 2: CORE SERVICES SHOW ENCOURAGING PROGRESS²

Charts are provided for illustrative purposes only.

TRADE POLICY REMAINS A WILDCARD OVER THE COMING YEARS

Markets are still trying to figure out the impact of the incoming Trump administration's proposed policies, particularly around trade and tariffs. An index maintained by Economic Policy Uncertainty tracking US trade policy uncertainty (by tracking newspaper coverage and professional economic forecasts) has recently spiked to all-time highs (Figure 3).

Nonetheless, we suspect that the potential effects of President-Elect Trump's policies will take time to reverberate across the economy and, as such, are unlikely to be a near-term consideration for the Fed as it continues its rate cutting cycle.

FIGURE 3: TRADE POLICY UNCERTAINTY INDEX HAS SPIKED SINCE THE ELECTION³

Charts are provided for illustrative purposes only.

WE EXPECT THE FED TO STAY THE COURSE OVER THE NEAR TERM

Inflation is still fundamentally trending in the right direction, in our view. While trade policy may be a medium-to-longer-term consideration for the Fed, we expect the Fed to continue its rate cutting cycle over the coming months.

² Macrobond, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Bloomberg, Insight, December 2024

³ Macrobond, Economic Policy Uncertainty, December 2024

This Page Left Intentionally Blank

DISCLOSURE

All investments involve risk, including the possible loss of principal. Certain investments have specific or unique risks that should be considered along with the objectives, fees, and expenses before investing.

This material has been provided for informational purposes only and should not be construed as investment advice or a recommendation of any particular investment product, strategy, investment manager or account arrangement, and should not serve as a primary basis for investment decisions. Prospective investors should consult a legal, tax or financial professional in order to determine whether any investment product, strategy or service is appropriate for their particular circumstances. Views expressed are those of the author stated and do not reflect views of other managers or the firm overall. Views are current as of the date of this publication and subject to change. This information contains projections or other forward-looking statements regarding future events, targets or expectations, and is only current as of the date indicated. There is no assurance that such events or expectations will be achieved, and actual results may be significantly different from that shown here. The information is based on current market conditions, which will fluctuate and may be superseded by subsequent market events or for other reasons. References to specific securities, asset classes and financial markets are for illustrative purposes only and are not intended to be and should not be interpreted as recommendations. Information contained herein has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable, but not guaranteed. No part of this material may be reproduced in any form, or referred to in any other publication, without express written permission.

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) measures the monthly change in prices paid by U.S. consumers. The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) calculates the CPI as a weighted average of prices for a basket of goods and services representative of aggregate U.S. consumer spending. Headline CPI is the raw inflation figure reported through the Consumer Price Index (CPI) monthly. Core CPI excludes the more volatile food and energy categories. Sticky inflation refers to a persistent economic scenario where prices for goods and services do not adjust quickly to changes in supply and demand dynamics. Supercore inflation equals the inflation of a basket of goods and services, minus the food and energy inflation, and minus the housing inflation.

BNY Investments is one of the world's leading investment management organizations, encompassing BNY's affiliated investment management firms and global distribution companies. BNY is the corporate brand of The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation and may be used to reference the corporation as a whole and/or its various subsidiaries generally.

Investment advisory services in North America are provided by Insight North America LLC, a registered investment adviser and regulated by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Insight North America LLC is associated with other global investment managers that also (individually and collectively) use the corporate brand Insight Investment and may be referred to as "Insight" or "Insight Investment."

Insight and BNY Mellon Securities Corporation are subsidiaries of BNY. © 2024 BNY Mellon Securities Corporation, distributor, 240 Greenwich Street, 9th Floor, New York, NY 10286.

Not FDIC-Insured. Not Bank-Guaranteed. May Lose Value.